

KOLEHMAINEN AGAIN WINS BIG MARATHON

In Third Victory in City Streets Time Is Above Last Year's for 18 Miles.

GIANAKOPOULOS IS SECOND

Hannes Kolehmainen won another clean-cut victory—his third in as many years—in the modified marathon conducted by the Evening Mail yesterday. The famous Finn ran the thirteen miles and 200 yards from the upper reaches of The Bronx to the City Hall in 1 hour 14 minutes 9.3 seconds, just about five minutes slower than his record breaking time of 1914. The course was not exactly the same as it was last year, and that may account for the slower time.

For the first five or six miles Kolehmainen had company in the person of Nick Gianakopoulos, the mighty Greek, who persisted in sticking right at the Finn's shoulder all through The Bronx and Harlem, and who had the effrontery to take the lead for a block and a half of the procession swept down Fifth avenue in the seventh mile.

A few blocks further down, about Seventy-second street, the Finn began to shake off his sturdy rival, and from that point on it was only a question of by how much Kolehmainen would win. He kept adding to his advantage with every succeeding step and soon was so far ahead that the bulky form of Nick, the Greek, was lost in the turmoil of the crowd. Gianakopoulos, a son of a Greek of the hove, however, that he could afford to let Kolehmainen gain a big lead and still remain in the second place, finishing in 1 hour 16 minutes 45 seconds, nearly half a mile behind.

Travelers of the Mohawk A. C., who has done good work in the past, ran races about New York, finished in third place well behind the Greek. C. Pore, the Sea Gate winner, was fourth, with J. Honahan, another of the favorites, fifth.

Thus every man in the first five was a well known runner, who had proved his worth before the public. The big army of unknowns failed to furnish an unaltered star to fight it out with the acknowledged leaders at the goal. It was not until 2.00, over half an hour late, that Justice Barlow S. Weeks fired the pistol that sent the big mass of runners scrambling down the course from 14th street at a speed that would have been judicious if the race had been a half mile instead of a thirteen mile affair. Kolehmainen and Gianakopoulos soon emerged from the crush and went out in front to stay there until the finish. The others tried vainly to hold their own, but were equal to the task and before the second mile was over the two leaders had the race all to themselves.

Just beyond the second mile point a turn was made down a steep hill into Jerome avenue and the runners kept on down Jerome avenue until they reached Central Bridge and were through with The Bronx.

Across the bridge they swept, while a flotilla of tugs whistled a vain request for the bridge to open, but the river traffic had to wait until the last athlete had set foot on Manhattan Island. The Manhattan end of the bridge was the three mile mark, and Kolehmainen passed it 15 minutes 53.5 seconds after the start, with Nick, the Greek, pounding along at his heels.

From the bridge the course was straight down Seventh avenue to Central Park, and every foot of the way was lined with spectators, who inquired anxiously of the officials in the blue blazes ahead as to how the race was progressing.

"Who's ahead?" shouted a group of the dusky denizens of the region around 15th street. "Jess Willard" was the answer, and the throng of negroes enjoyed the retort so much they laughed heartily recovered from their laughter in time to see the Finn and the Greek flash by.

The runners turned east on 11th street to Fifth avenue, and it was on the avenue that the Greek made his last stand. He managed to pass Kolehmainen for about a block and then he began to drop back. They were shoulder to shoulder at the end of the seventh mile, which was completed in 38 minutes 7.5 seconds, but at the eighth mile post, Sixty-third street and Fifth avenue, Kolehmainen had a lead of a third of a block.

A turn to the west was made at Fifty-seventh street, and the runners found a hill in their path that accounted for a good many of the weaker ones. At the top of the hill they turned south on Seventh avenue and found the most disadvantageous stretch of all ahead of them.

Below Forty-second street the course was over the board roofing of the uncompleted subway, and the great clouds of dust almost hid the runners from the crowds which made a narrow lane in the middle of the road.

On Fourteenth street Kolehmainen turned east again to Fifth avenue, and just before he turned into the avenue finished the eleventh mile in 1 hour and 1 minute.

Down the lower blocks of Fifth avenue and under the Washington Arch Kolehmainen ran seemingly as fresh as ever. At Fourth street another turn to the east was made to Lafayette street, and the remainder of the route was on Lafayette street to the City Hall.

This made the last mile all over hard stones, but Kolehmainen did not seem to mind it. He went through the throng of crowd around the City Hall and broke the tape amid the cheers of the throng.

It was a well run race and the Finn was in fine condition when it was over. After a wait of over two and one-half minutes the big Greek lumbered across the line. Then the others began trailing along and kept on for the time limit of 2 hours and 20 minutes.

NORWEGIAN GIRL BEATS ANOTHER STAR OF U. S.

Miss Bjurstedt in Finals on West Side Courts Runs Through Match With Mrs. McLean in Straight Sets—H. L. Carr Gets Men's Prize.

MISS BJURSTEDT TRIUMPHED

Miss Maria Bjurstedt triumphed over another American star yesterday, when she defeated Mrs. Marshall McLean, formerly national champion, in the final round of the women's singles for the championship of the West Side Tennis Club at the club courts, Forest Hills. Miss Bjurstedt showed no ill effects from the injury which she received recently and ran through the match in straight sets at 6-3, 8-6.

The secret of the Norwegian girl's success appeared to be that she was every place all the time. Her hard driving and brilliant gets were too much for Mrs. McLean, although the latter played at top speed from start to finish.

H. L. Carr won the Class C division of the men's singles, defeating E. T. Crilly in straight sets at 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

The Class B section for women was also completed and was won by Miss Helen Simpson, Miss Simpson defeated Miss Jeanette Chappell in the final round and had an easy time. Miss Chappell took only one game in the two sets.

The first prize in the Class of the mixed doubles went to Miss Marion Vanderhoef and E. S. Moore, who defeated Miss Curry and H. A. Mellick in the final round.

Travelers of the Mohawk A. C., who has done good work in the past, ran races about New York, finished in third place well behind the Greek. C. Pore, the Sea Gate winner, was fourth, with J. Honahan, another of the favorites, fifth.

Thus every man in the first five was a well known runner, who had proved his worth before the public. The big army of unknowns failed to furnish an unaltered star to fight it out with the acknowledged leaders at the goal.

It was not until 2.00, over half an hour late, that Justice Barlow S. Weeks fired the pistol that sent the big mass of runners scrambling down the course from 14th street at a speed that would have been judicious if the race had been a half mile instead of a thirteen mile affair. Kolehmainen and Gianakopoulos soon emerged from the crush and went out in front to stay there until the finish. The others tried vainly to hold their own, but were equal to the task and before the second mile was over the two leaders had the race all to themselves.

Just beyond the second mile point a turn was made down a steep hill into Jerome avenue and the runners kept on down Jerome avenue until they reached Central Bridge and were through with The Bronx.

Across the bridge they swept, while a flotilla of tugs whistled a vain request for the bridge to open, but the river traffic had to wait until the last athlete had set foot on Manhattan Island. The Manhattan end of the bridge was the three mile mark, and Kolehmainen passed it 15 minutes 53.5 seconds after the start, with Nick, the Greek, pounding along at his heels.

From the bridge the course was straight down Seventh avenue to Central Park, and every foot of the way was lined with spectators, who inquired anxiously of the officials in the blue blazes ahead as to how the race was progressing.

"Who's ahead?" shouted a group of the dusky denizens of the region around 15th street. "Jess Willard" was the answer, and the throng of negroes enjoyed the retort so much they laughed heartily recovered from their laughter in time to see the Finn and the Greek flash by.

The runners turned east on 11th street to Fifth avenue, and it was on the avenue that the Greek made his last stand. He managed to pass Kolehmainen for about a block and then he began to drop back. They were shoulder to shoulder at the end of the seventh mile, which was completed in 38 minutes 7.5 seconds, but at the eighth mile post, Sixty-third street and Fifth avenue, Kolehmainen had a lead of a third of a block.

A turn to the west was made at Fifty-seventh street, and the runners found a hill in their path that accounted for a good many of the weaker ones. At the top of the hill they turned south on Seventh avenue and found the most disadvantageous stretch of all ahead of them.

Below Forty-second street the course was over the board roofing of the uncompleted subway, and the great clouds of dust almost hid the runners from the crowds which made a narrow lane in the middle of the road.

On Fourteenth street Kolehmainen turned east again to Fifth avenue, and just before he turned into the avenue finished the eleventh mile in 1 hour and 1 minute.

Down the lower blocks of Fifth avenue and under the Washington Arch Kolehmainen ran seemingly as fresh as ever. At Fourth street another turn to the east was made to Lafayette street, and the remainder of the route was on Lafayette street to the City Hall.

This made the last mile all over hard stones, but Kolehmainen did not seem to mind it. He went through the throng of crowd around the City Hall and broke the tape amid the cheers of the throng.

It was a well run race and the Finn was in fine condition when it was over. After a wait of over two and one-half minutes the big Greek lumbered across the line. Then the others began trailing along and kept on for the time limit of 2 hours and 20 minutes.
